right: The Red Scroll Lamp comes from a village in Vietnam that has been producing fine porcelain for more than 700 years. Offered by Jamie Young, the designs incorporate flowers, vines, butterflies, and the occasional dragonfly. The soft tracery of the designs and muted colors, along with the crackle glaze give them the feel of antique porcelain. www.jamieyoung.com.

left: This Provincial Armchair from Manheim-Ruseau borrows from classical European movements, yet is built with modern proportions. www.manheimruseau.com, 972.387.4578.

above: The Approach Road Cabinet is part of the Biltmore Estate Collection from Habersham. The cabinet reflects the construction and design of many furnishings found throughout the Vanderbilt home. www.habershamdesigns.com, 706.886.1476.

below: From London-based design collective LosPalurdos comes this bench designed by Per Fagring. Made from hand-laid fiberglass with multiple layers of polyurethane spray finish. www.lospalurdos.com, 44.0.7754.724.600.
