MANSIONS GO GREEN

After 20 years of building one-of-a-kind mansions, real estate builder and developer Frank McKinney creates one rooted in nature. At nearly 15,000 square feet, this $29 million residence will be the first home of its size to be certified green with enough solar panels to cover a regulation-size basketball court and will use enough reclaimed wood to save 7.5 acres of Brazilian rainforest. Spanning from ocean to Intracoastal in Manalapan, Fla., the home incorporates South Pacific style with the utmost in luxury amenities. www.frank-mckinney.com
